SISTRADE DEVELOPS A NEW ENERGY MANAGEMENT TOOL

Once, power was considered abundant, nowadays it is considered a resource that must be managed carefully not only in households but mainly in the companies.

The electricity, water or gas, with the constant rise in prices and concern about environmental issues have become increasingly valuable resources.

Companies are more aware of the reduction of energy consumption. But what can they do? What measures are necessary to better fulfill their potential? And once the companies implement the necessary measure, how they know and document its effectiveness? These questions lead to an answer: Energy Management System.

SISTRADE, aware that indicators should be quantifiable and measurable, and that companies need to manage all areas of work, developed a tool that allows controlling energy consumption as well as identifying the cost centre that causes consumption higher than expected so it is possible to take appropriate actions.
